COST ESTIMATE

S. 1030

An act to provide that the conveyance by the Bureau of Land Management of the surface estate to certain land in the state of Wyoming in exchange for certain private land will not result in the removal of the land from operation of the mining laws

As ordered reported by the House Committee on Resources on June 28, 2000

CBO estimates that enacting S. 1030 would have no significant impact on the federal budget. Enacting the legislation would not affect direct spending or receipts; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply. S. 1030 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

S. 1030 concerns the administration of certain federal land that the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) plans to exchange in Wyoming. In the proposed exchange, the federal government would convey the surface rights to about 20,830 acres of federal land in exchange for the surface rights to about 9,500 acres of privately owned land. No subsurface mineral rights would be exchanged. However, under current federal regulations, public land administered by BLM that is conveyed in an exchange is automatically removed from operation of the mining laws. S. 1030 provides that the subsurface rights retained by the federal government in the land exchange would not be subject to those regulations and would therefore remain open to the mining laws. As a result, enacting this legislation would allow a uranium mining company to pursue its existing subsurface claims to the land after the exchange is completed.

On October 5, 1999, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for S. 1030 as ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources on September 22, 1999. The two versions of this legislation are identical, and the cost estimates are the same.

The CBO staff contact is Megan Carroll. This estimate was approved by Peter H. Fontaine, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.
